Abstract

The invention creates a device for the entry of names into a navigation system (12). The selection probability is taken into consideration in entering the names. At least one statistically collected detail or a detail recorded by measurement technology concerning the local characteristics of the area designated by the name is used as a measure for the selection probability.

(Figure 1)

440001